BARBECUE FOR BOYS

COUNTY TO HONOR MEMBERS OF THE NEW ARMY WEDNESDAY.

SEVERAL BANDS COMING

People of the County Are Invited to Be Guests of Maryville That Day To Honor the Boys.

The citizens of Maryville have completed arrangements for a big barbecue next Wednesday, September 19, in honor of the members of the new national army who will leave in a few days and up to October 3, for Camp Funston, Kan. The affair will be in the nature of a farewell for the boys by the people of the county.

Each town in the county will be asked to bring their band and a big delegation here for the occasion. The barbecue will be absolutely free and all the people of the county are cordially invited to attend.

The tables will be set on Main street and the members of the D. A. R. and the W. R. C. will assist in waiting on the tables. A special table will be provided for the members of the new national army. There will also be tables reserved for the Spanish-American war veterans and the members of the G. A. R. Post. The schools of the city will dismiss for the day.

The plan is to have all of the bands in the county with the members of the new army, Spanish-American and Civil War veterans formed in a parade and marched.

Arrangements have been made for the members of Boy Scouts to peel the potatoes necessary for the big feed.

Speakers will be secured for the affair. The committee is writing to several prominent men over the state to attend.

A number of the citizens will make a tour over the county tomorrow to invite the members of the new army and their friends and relatives to come here that day. These men are requested to meet in front of the Empire Theatre tomorrow morning with their cars. Anybody that can go are urged to make the tour.

Every committee is working to make this day one long to be remembered by the boys who are going to form our big army as well as by their friends throughout the county. Lay aside business for that day and be a guest of the citizens of Maryville.

A CIVIL WAR NEXT?

REVOLUTIONARY TROOPS MARCHING TO RUSSIAN CAPITOL.

KORNILOFF IS IN CHARGE

Kerensky Prepares For Clash—Cossacks Are Only 85 Miles From Petrograd.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Copenhagen, Sept 11. — Civil war menaces Russia today with the Germans pounding on the roadway leading to Petrograd. The revolutionary troops under Korniloff have begun a march upon the capitol.

Advices from Petrograd reported that Korniloff's cossacks are about 80 miles from the city. A clash with forces loyal to Kerensky is believed to be imminent. The premier is striving rapidly to put down military revolt before the mutinous sentiment can spread any further in the army.

Petrograd, Sept. 11.—Kerensky is making ready for civil war in Russia. The hostile army led by Korniloff is marching upon the capital and a battle is expected near Luga, 85 miles away. The cabinet and General Vasilovsky, military governor of Petrograd, have resigned. Kerensky as dictator is in supreme control and is making a vigorous effort to defend the capitol. A delegation of Cossacks and members of the council of workmen's and soldiers delegates left for the front to try and effect a reconciliation with Korniloff. There is small hope for success.

Kerensky Resigned, A Rumor Says.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Unofficial reports reached the Russian embassy that Kerensky has resigned. There is no official dispatch confirming the rumor Stockholm, Sept. 11.—Unconfirmed report that Kerensky has been murdered received here today.

FILES THE CRAWFORD WILL.

Estate Is Bequeathed to His Three Children—J. E. Crawford Executor.

The will of Joseph A. Crawford who died a few weeks ago at his home in Wilcox was filed in probate court today. A son, J. E. Crawford is given twenty-six acres of land; a daughter, Alice Saltzman a life estate to block 1 in Wilcox; J. E. Crawford is also bequeathed $1,720; Alice Saltzman is given $2,520; Ida M. Mendenhall $3,720 Thelma Brogan $500; and Ralph Brogan $400. The rest of the estate goes to J. E. Crawford, Alice Saltzman and Ida M. Mendenhall. J. E. Crawford was named as executor of the estate. The will was written March 21, 1917 and was witnessed by F. P. Robinson and J. D. Richey.

Oakerson Leaves For Honeywell.

W. M. Oakerson of the state department of education at Jefferson City, left last night for Honeywell, Mo., where he will inspect the school there. Mr. Oakerson has been visiting here for a week. Mrs. Oakerson will remain for a longer visit. Yesterday Mr. Oakerson and County Superintendent of Schools Bert Cooper attended the Skidmore school, and Mr. Oakerson gave a short talk.

Motored to Rochester, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Peter of Skidmore and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Willoughby and son, Vodre, of 418 West Seventh street, motored to Rochester, Mo., the former home of Mr. Willoughby, and spent Sunday with relatives and friends at Sigrist Lake, an ideal spot for camping and fishing. They report a big fish fry and a general good time fishing and boat riding. They returned home the same evening and brought with them fifty pounds of choice Buffalo fish.

Elmer Cogdill Arrested.

Elmer Cogdill of Conception Junction was arrested yesterday by Sheriff Dowden on a charge of disturbing the peace. He gave bond for his appearance at the September term of circuit court. His brother, Tom Cogdill, was recently arrested on the same charge. It is charged the boys disturbed the peace of the people of Conception Junction during the street fair there recently. Both of them were fined by the town and then Prosecuting Attorney Sawyers issued information against them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hunt left Sunday for their home in Sedalia following a visit of several days with relatives in Maryville. They were accompanied home by Misses Bride and Kate Hunt.

PREPARING DOCKET

FOR THE SEPTEMBER TERM OF COURT WHICH MEETS SEPT. 24.

FRENCH BROWN CASE UP

Many Other Important Criminal Cases —Twenty-Five Divorce Suits On the Docket.

While many cases are set for trial at the September term of circuit court which will convene Monday, September 24, yet it is thought that court will not last over ten days. The docket is being arranged today by Circuit Clerk Henry Westfall for the term.

Parole case will come up on the first day of court. There are fifteen of these cases. There are forty-eight equity cases on the docket for Monday and Tuesday. Twenty-five divorce cases are also set for trial on Tuesday.

The trial docket will commence on Wednesday, when the jury will be here. There are ninety-six of these cases, many of them being back tax suits by the city and county collectors. The most important case is the libel and slander suits of Clyde McMillen and Elizabeth McMillen against Henry Weber and Lydia Weber. The total amount sued for is $80,000.

There are many important criminal cases set for trial, there being twenty-six of these cases on the docket. The most important case is that of French Brown, charged with second degree murder of Lon Lyle. It is thought that a continuance will be asked in this case. Then there is the case of Henry Moore, on a charge of assault with intent to kill, John Jackson of Ravenwood being the complainant. Rose Auten of near Parnell is charged with infanticide and William H. Kiphart with arson. The other criminal cases are mainly for gaming, common assault, disturbing the peace, violation of local option law.

DEATH OF CLINT ALLEN

U.S. STEAMERS IN BIG NAVAL BATTLE

TWO SUNK IN ENCOUNTER WITH GERMAN SUBMARINES.

AMERICAN SEAMEN FOUGHT GLORIOUSLY

Both Ships Destroyed Were Used in Merchant Trade and Carried War Contraband.

BULLETIN.

Washington, Sept. 11.—One German submarine was probably sunk in the engagement with Flotilla of American steamers, according to the revised statement of the Navy Department late this afternoon. An error in the department handling the first dispatch made it appear as though six submarines were probably lost at first.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The biggest naval action that the United States sailors have been in since the nation entered the war, was announced by the Navy Department today. Two American steamers were sunk in an encounter which was between a squadron of armed steamers and six German submarines off the coast of France. Probably all the submarines were sent down, according to the Navy Department's official report.

The department received the report from Paris dated the eighth, saying that the American steamer Westwego, reports while cruising with several other ships off the coast of France, September 5, the squadron was attacked by a massed force of six submarines. Two steamers were sunk and probably all the submarines were lost. The vessels that made up the American squadron were not transports, it was learned, but were ships in regular merchant trade. It is not known whether there were any casualties. It is supposed the submarines were sunk. The Westwego carried a crew of forty-two men.

Details of the battle have not been received but enough is known to show that the Americans covered themselves with glory. The first torpedoes missed the Westego and the submarine commanders turned their attention to the other ships of the American flotilla. Two American ships before the United States destroyers convoying them had accounted for all the submarines. Westego is owned by the Union Petroleum steamship company at Philadelphia. All ships probably carried war munitions and food stuffs. There has been no report of the casualties but it is believed unless vessels went down very quickly other crafts standing by probably had time to pick up all those in water before they perished.

"AND THE DAYS ARE DARK AND DREARY."

New York, Sept. 11.—One result of the demise of the genial John Barleycorn will be that one-third of all saloons in the metropolitan centre of the country, old New York town, will close as the licenses expire on October 1.

With the whole credit system of the liquor trade gone to smash under the threat of the new Federal tax, the State demanding a bigger bit than ever out of profits and the stills shut down, between 30 and 40 per cent of the city's 8,000 saloons are expected to "kick the bucket."

The real tragedy comes in the case of gin. The country normally consumes 6,000,000 gallons a year, but there is on hand only about 3,000,000 gallons. The late spring will probably see the passing of gin. A wild scramble for something that looks like gin, smells like gin, tastes like gin and is—gin, will be on during the summer of 1918 unless some enterprising benefactor or philanthropist invents a perfectly good substitute.

A real consideration is being voiced in some quarters as to the health of stomachs suddenly forced to depend upon water for a thirst quencher. Most of the Bacchanal will have a little grace in which to accustom themselves to changed conditions, through private stores cached away in coal bins, suit cases, cellars, closets, and in fact, in any place where books may be thrown out or other useless household or family articles junked to make way for real emergency. Some solicitation may well be felt for that class of humanity which lives from hand to mouth and "rustles" street corners for a living. The pathetic days are indeed here when they are compelled to memorize the drinking fountains and their locations, where no creature comforts are, such as brass rails, pretzel dishes and German bartenders.

Obituary.

Mary Alice Holt, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holt, was born at Maryville, Mo., January 3, 1911, and departed this life September 7, 1917. Aged 6 years, 8 months and 4 days.

Little Mary was the sunshine in the home the joy and delight of father and mother and idolized by her sisters. But after an illness of only a few days she quietly slipped away to be with the Savior, the children's friend. Earth is poorer, but Heaven is richer because of her presence there.

She leaves a grief-stricken father and mother two sisters, Alene and Cleo, and a number of other relatives beside a host of friends.

The funeral services were held at the home Sunday, September 9 at 2 o'clock p. m., by the Rev. C. S. Dayhoff, of the Methodist Episcopal church of Pickering. Interment was made in the Oak Hill cemetery at Maryville.

I think God gives the children,
As thro' the world they go;
The most delightful mission
That anyone can know.
He wants them to be his sunbeams,
Of love and hope and cheer;
To drive away the shadows,
That often gather here.
Our darling lived her mission;
A sunbeam day by day,
And scattered joy and brightness
About us all the way.
She chased away life's shadows,
With loving tho't and deed;
She's gone to be with Jesus,
To be his child indeed.

RESIGNATION NOT ACCEPTED

Vote of Confidence Is Passed to Dr. C. M. Chilton, Pastor of St. Joseph Church.

Dr. C. M. Chilton, for twenty years pastor of the First Christian church of St. Joseph, will not leave that congregation, his resignation having been rejected Sunday by the unanimous vote of the congregation and resolutions of confidence and affection passed.

Dr. Chilton offered his resignation recently, feeling that the fact that he had just been divorced might make his continuance as pastor inadvisable, but, instead of accepting the resignation, a vote of confidence was passed.

The resolution had first been presented to the forty members of the official board, Friday night, and was unanimously adopted and passed on to the congregation, coming up before the whole body Sunday morning after the usual services. Dr. Chilton retired and George W. Eastin, president of the board, took charge of the meeting and called on John P. Strong, who read the resolutions as passed by the official board, and which read as follows:

"Brother C. M. Chilton for two decades has been the pastor, spiritual guide, and prophet of this church, rejoicing with us in our triumphs and sympathizing with us in our troubles and shortcomings, cheering us ever forward with the voice of wisdom and chiding us with the voice of a seer; and now, when the walls of our new church and temple, the monument of our mutual work and worth and the emblem of his handiwork, are just arising to completion, he, with this vision of his heart's desire almost realized, offers us his resignation. He offers it because in his hour of trouble and tribulation he thinks it his duty to offer it.

"Be it therefore resolved that we respectfully decline his offer and with full and overflowing hearts, express to him our fullest sympathy for the trials that confront him and with abiding confidence in him beckon him to join hands with us in our mutual sorrows and triumphs, wherein he will continue, as in the past, to lead us as our pastor, guide, seer, and prophet.

"Be it further resolved that we recommend to the congregation of this church the adoption and confirmation of the action hereby taken as herein expressed, and direct the proper officers of this board to present this resolution to the brethren of the church at regular assembly for worship on Sunday, Sept. 9, 1917, for their action thereupon."

THE LATEST KEENE POEM.

The following poem was secured from Virgil Keene, who claimes he did not compose it but got it at Lexington, Mo.

When the war is over, Laddies, just take a tip from me,
There will be no German submarines,
a driving through the sea;
In the Fatherland is Kaiser Bill, the guy we are going to lick,
And we will have a brand new Kaiser,
and the same will be a Mick.
We will change the song "DIE WACHT
AN RHEIN" into an IRISH REEL;
And make the Dutchman dance it, if so inclined we feel;
And the POLICE FORCE IN BERLIN
will be MICKS from County Clare,
When we put an IRISH KAISER in
the Palace over there.
Sure in every German Parkway you'll find a sweet Colleen,
And the fields of waving Sauerkraut,
we'll plant to Shamrocks Green;
No Liverwurst or Sausage when the
Dutchman drinks his SUDS,
But he'll get corned beef and cabbage and good old Irish Spuds.
The Heathen's guns and gas bombs,
we'll throw them all away,
And make them use SHILLALAS or bricks of IRISH CLAY;
They'll wear no Iron Crosses, sure,
it's SHAMROCKS they will wear,
When we put an IRISH KAISER in
the Palace over there.

Who Wouldn't Look Sweet in this Betty Wales?

A DEEP, rich Burgundy serge with box plaited skirt, a wide self stitched belt peculiarly girlish because slightly lifted in Empire effect, a little self-vestee and then the crowning feature—hand-drawn collar and cuffs of white voile with hand-made edging, all made by native women of the tropical isles of the sea.

ROBERT WARWICK AT ELECTRIC.

Famous Star Will Appear in "The Argyle Case" Tonight.

The feature on the program of the Electric Theatre tonight will be Robert Warwick in his first Selznick-Picture, "The Argyle Case." This is an adaptation of the famous detective drama that ran for two years on Broadway in New York and toured the country with immense success several seasons ago. The play was the work of Harvey J. O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, the celebrated American dramatists, and William J. Burns, the international detective, who collaborated with the authors in order to insure the realistic effectiveness of the use of such modern instruments of the science of detection as the dictograph and finger-print photography.

The result was a detective drama that differed from any play of its kind ever produced. In this play the methods in which the detective follows up his clues and runs the murderer down are precisely the methods employed by such real detectives as Mr. Burns. The old-school detective of fiction, with his false whiskers and other ridiculous disguises, is abandoned in favor of a fine modern type of courageous and acute young man, who solves his problems by clever brain work with the aid of the latest scientific inventions.

The story of "The Argyle Case" is one that will hold every spectator enthralled from beginning to end. It starts with the absorbing mystery of the murder of old John Argyle, an eccentric millionaire. Suspicion falls upon Arglye's adopted daughter, Mary, and while the police are trying to amass enough evidence to convict her Asche Kayton, private detective extraordinary, is called in to prove her innocence. In accomplishing this the trial leads into the den of the cleverest band of counterfeiters in America and the action of the play is replete with thrills and moments of nerve-racking suspense. In addition to its interest as a mystery, the story unfolds a charming romance between the detective and the girl he saves.

As Kayton, Mr. Warwick appears in probably the most sympathetic and entertaining role he has ever played for the screen. He is a perfect type for the part and gives to the performance a real distinctiveness and charm of personality.

ASK YOUR FRIEND.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any city, town or hamlet in the United States where women cannot be found who have derived benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than forty years this botanic remedy has been overcoming some of the worst cases of female ills. As one woman has found help she has told another, who has used it with the same result; so the use of this great medicine has spread from shore to shore by the recommendation of those who have found it good. Therefore, ask your neighbor, let her tell you from experience the benefit which ailing women derive from the use of this famous medicine.

Prevents Chick Losses

Millions of chicks die yearly due to the ravages of lice and mites. They sap the strength and vitality of the delicate chicks and leave them easy prey to dangerous disease germs.

Wolf's Rapid Louse Killer quickly destroys lice on the chicks and mother hen, keeps the nest, litter and dust bath free from insect pests. Also destroys certain bugs and worms on cucumber, squash, melon vines and rose bushes.

KANSAS CITY LIVE STOCK.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Sept. 10.—Cattle supply today 24,000 head, market steady on best killers, top $16.50, and on stock cattle, 10c to 15c lower on other cattle. Hogs received today 4,000, market 15c to 25c higher, top $18.70. Sheep and lambs today 6,500, market steady, top lambs to killers $17.35.

Beef Cattle.

There was no further strike trouble in sight at packing houses this morning, but uncertainty concerning labor, together with a heavy surplus of cattle at Chicago, where receipts were 29,000, and lower prices reported from that point, made the opening slow here, and offers weak at the start. Confidence increased, and the best cattle sold steady, top $16.50, for steers from Kansas, whose mates brought $16.35 here last week. Grass cattle sold mostly 10c to 15c lower, extremes more, though there was some demand for fleshy feeders, some Nebraska Sand Hill steers weighing 1,218 pounds going to feeder buyers at $11.75, bought away from the packers. Butcher cattle sold at steady to weak prices.

Stockers and Feeders.

More buyers were here today, and prices were steady at the decline of 25c to 50c effective at the finish last week. Offerings included some good strings from the Panhandle, and two or three trains from Colorado, and buyers had a good chance to pick out what they wanted. Stock steers bring $6.50 to $9.00, feeding steers $8.75 to $10.00, fleshy steers for a short feed up to $12.50.

Hogs.

The break early last week was partly repaired at the close, and further repair work was done today, choice heavy hogs bringing $18.70, medium weights $18.50, light weights also up to $18.50, bulk of sales $17.50 to $18.50. Owners are holding back light hogs and pigs, average weight here last week 219 pounds which was 29 pounds heavier than in the previous week. Professor Cochel of the Kansas College figures that a mixture of corn, shorts and tankage will put gains on hogs at slightly less than 10c a pound, present feed prices, and evidently a good many shippers figure in a similar way, at least they see a profit in making big hogs out of little ones. In the meantime, receipts are running extra light everywhere, and the market looks secure for the moment.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sales today were steady at the advance made last week, offerings today including Utahs to killers at $17.35, Colorados $17.30, natives $17.00, Utah feeding lambs at $17.40, fat ewes at $11.00, fat yearlings $13.00. Breeding ewes sell at $13.00 to $16.75, ewe lambs up to $18.00. Bullish sentiment prevails, and 20 cent feeding lambs for October are being talked of.

Garland's First Screen Story.

"The Captain of Gray Horse Troop" is the first Hamlin Garland story to reach the screen. The photodrama, which comes to the Empire Theatre tonight has unusually picturesque qualities. Writing with the purpose of presenting the problems of the American Indian, Mr. Hamlin hit upon a charming romance.

The story in brief follows: Captain George Curtis, of the Gray Horse Troop, is detailed to a Tetong Reservation as agent to displace the cruel, dishonest Indian agent Sennett. Curtis believes that the Indians can be developed, educated and made happy by kindness. He finds the settlers, the cowmen, antagonistic. They want the land for grazing their stock.

Elsie Brisbane, daughter of Ex-Senator Brisbane, is staying at the agency to paint Indian pictures. The displaced agent, Sennett, is her uncle, and naturally she comes to think Curtis unfair in ejecting the man. But, as Curtis goes steadily forward in his plans, she is made finally to realize how right he has been. The settlers provoke trouble an Indian kills a herder who attempts to insult his squaw, and mobs threaten the reservation. Curtis arrests the murderer, convoys him to the nearby jail, averts the mob rule and, in the end, wins not only triumphant acclaim for his theories, but Elsie as well.

Hamlin Garland's story was adapted to the films by A. Van Buren Powell and directed by William Wolbert. It was filmed in the rugged West. Antonio Moreno and Edith Storey are featured and the cast numbers Mrs. Bradbury, Otto Lederer, Al Jennings, Neola May, Robert Burns, Edward Cecil and H. A. Barrows.

Missouri Graduates Stand High in Dairy Work.

The regard with which graduates of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture are held in other states is illustrated by positions to which these graduates have been appointed. Fourteen who specialized in dairy work are heads of dairy instruction in fourteen state institutions. G. C. White is head of the dairy instruction work in Connecticut Agricultural College; W. M. Regan at Rutgers College, New Jersey; T. C. Reed at North Carolina Agricultural College; W. A. Rhea at the University of West Virginia; R. M. Washburn is head of the dairy manufacturing work at the University of Minnesota; F. S. Gillette is head of the dairy cattle work at the Iowa State College of Agriculture; O. E. Reed at Kansas State Agricultural College; J. S. Keithley at North Dakota Agricultural College; A. C. Baltzer at the University of Idaho, E. G. Woodward at the University of Nevada, P. M. Brandt at the Oregon Agricultural College; G. B. Caine at the University of Utah; C. E. Wylie at the University of Tennessee, and C. L. Willoughby at the University of Florida.

In addition to the foregoing, thirty-four other graduates are doing work in different colleges and universities.

Counties Want Agents.

Twenty-one Missouri counties are interested in the emergency county agent plan. These counties have applied through county councils of defense and farm bureaus for help in perfecting organization for an agent. Four counties have already begun organization.

Emergency county agents in all counties which do not have agents is part of the plan proposed by the United States Government for increasing production. The University of Missouri College of Agriculture has been designated as the institution through which the Federal appropriations for emergency agents will be administered in this state. Counties must organize to obtain an agent. The College of Agriculture will send a representative to any county which requests help in organizing for the work. This representative will explain the plan and designate the necessary steps that must be taken to obtain an agent.

Wheat Yield 6½ Bushels Above 1916 Crop.

In spite of the adverse fall and winter weather conditions to the 1917 Missouri wheat crop, the threshing records show that the acre yield is 6½ bushels more than it was in 1916. The wheat is not all threshed but the records indicate a yield of 14.8 bushels per acre, while the 1916 acre yield was 8.3 bushels.

The hessian fly is also under control, due, first, to the cooperative efforts of farmers to control the pest last fall and, second, to the dry weather at seeding time which kept the early sown wheat from starting growth until after the fly-free date.

Why not keep the hessian fly under control if the yield of wheat can be increased at the same time? This can be done, says T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, by making a little better seed bed, by destroying volunteer wheat and by seeding as near the fly-free date as practical

The use of commercial fertilizer or barnyard manure will make stronger and healthier plants which are better able to stand an attack of the fly. With the hessian fly under control and the chinch bug abundant only in a few sections of the state the prospect for an increased yield of wheat in 1918 is good.

Wheat Joint Worm in Southeast Missouri.

Many wheat fields in Southeast Missouri are injured worse every year by the wheat joint worms than by the Hessian fly. The injury of these two insect pests of wheat is similar, but the work of each may be easily detected, according to T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

The injury of the wheat joint worm is characterized by swellings or galls in the wheat straw. Small, round holes may also appear in the galls or knots. By splitting the infested swellings in the wheat straw a half dozen or more yellish or whitish larvae about one-eighth inch long may be found. Most of the swellings or galls will usually be found near the second and third joints of the wheat plant.

The hessian fly in the larvae and flaxseed stage is usually found at the crown of the wheat plant or near the first or second joint, and it is always located between the leaf sheath and the stalk. The larvae or maggot stage of the fly does not feed within the wheat straw and it does not produce galls or swellings.

Both insect pests injure the wheat plants by cutting off the flow of sap, which may cause the wheat heads to fall, or only partially develop. The injury may also cause the wheat to fall or lodge badly in the spring during heavy rain or wind storms. The hessian fly damages the wheat in the fall and in the spring, while the joint worm injury is confined entirely to the spring and early summer season.

The control of the wheat worm depends upon the destruction of the old infested wheat stubble. The greatest source of infestation is wheat stubble which has been sown to clover or grass, because the insect lives in the wheat stubble until the next spring when it comes out and flies to adjoining wheat fields.

The common practice of seeding clover or grass in wheat fields in the spring should be discontinued in localities where the joint worms have damaged the wheat badly. The infested stubble may be plowed soon after harvest, and when a good seedbed has been prepared the grass and clover may be seeded in August or September. The land may also be sown to wheat again if the plowing is well done and a good seedbed is made.

A liberal use of commercial fertilizers or stable manure will help the wheat plants to overcome an attack of joint worm.

College Co-operates with Farmers.

The University of Missouri College of Agriculture co-operates with a large number of farmers in conducting different investigations. These co-operative experiments are conducted in soils, farm crops, veterinary science and farm management. Twenty-five different projects, mentioned in the last Experiment Station report, were conducted with farmers. These include experiments with corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa, vetch, potatoes, crimson clover, barley, cotton, sweet clover, cowpeas, soybeans, sorghum, Sudan grass, Spanish peanuts, and investigations in farm management, distribution of labor, systems of renting land, farm cost accounting, and investigations of animal diseases.

Topdress Wheat with Straw.

Last season showed especially good results for topdressing wheat. The old experiment field of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture at Columbia had twenty-one plots in wheat with various treatments and in early spring when most wheat looked dead and dried up those plots which had been topdressed with manure and straw started off vigorously showing that they were not badly dried out although all the rest had been badly injured. When threshing time came the highest yield, 39.4 bushels per acre was on a plot that has been topdressed with strawy manure and all of the topdressed plots yielded well. Missouri does not often experience so dry a winter as the last one, but spreading straw on the wheat early in winter not only protects it from drying out but also tends to prevent smothering by ice sheets. It keeps the snow from blowing off, and helps materially in returning fertility to the soil.

Any source of fertility is well worth considering at the present high prices of crops and fertilizers. A ton of straw contains 10 pounds of nitrogen, 1½ pounds of phosphorus and 18 pounds of potassium. At the present hig cost of nitrogen and potassium in commercial fertilizers the nitrogen of a ton of straw is worth $2.50 and the potassium is worth $5.00, making the straw worth $7.50 a ton for fertilizer in addition to the small amount of phosphorus it contains. Of course straw has additional value in that it adds vegetable matter to the soil.

Until the last few years straw had to be spread by hand and the task was somewhat laborious but recently machines have been put on the market for spreading straw rapidly and easily. The practice is gaining in popularity where the spreaders have been introduced.

Volunteer Wheat Harbors Hessian Fly.

Volunteer wheat must be destroyed to control the Hessian fly. The destruction of all wheat which has come up in the stubble or plowed fields since harvest and threshing time is one of the most important steps in controlling the insect. Enough flies can breed in this volunteer wheat to infest next year's crop. The other control measures will be greatly lessened if destruction of this wheat is neglected.

Careful observation and experiments for a series of years at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture has shown that a growth of wheat in September and early October is the most favorable breeding place for the hessian fly, and its greatest source of infestation in the spring

While the hessian fly is practically under control in Missouri there are enough of the insects left to reinfest the fields of the state. If volunteer wheat is allowed to grow it may become badly infested with the fly in September, and if it does it will be a menace to the wheat crop next year. Harrowing and discing will prevent the fly from emerging next spring to destroy or greatly reduce the yield of wheat. Cultivation of the plowed ground will not only starve the hessian fly but it will conserve soil moisture and will make a firmer and better seed bed for wheat. Such cultivation must be done before the volunteer wheat has become so large that the disc or harrow will not destroy it.

Filling the Silo.

Distributing and packing silage in the silo is frequently neglected. Unless the blower has a distributor attachment there is a tendency for the cut corn to fall in one place in the silo. If the silo is filled in this way, the finer and lighter portions of the stalks are frequently blown to the outside and the heavier parts, ears and butts of stalks, are deposited in the center, thus causing an uneven distribution of grain and stalk and a consequent uneven quality of silage. Uneven distribution is frequently the cause of soft places and air pockets, which later result in spoiled silage. When the lighter portions are blown to the outside they do not pack well and the silage spoils near the wall. Such spoilage, which really results from careless filling is often attributed to the silo.

Packing the silage is equally as important as distribution, according to S. T. Simpson of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Thorough packing requires plenty of men and persistent work. Good silage can be had only by uniform packing and uniform distribution of the corn. The entire surface, especially the outer edge, should be packed firmly. The best help obtainable should be stationed in the silo. That is where the silage is ultimately made, and success or failure depends on the ability of the men to distribute and pack the corn.

The large cutter with corresponding large capacity frequently saves money in filling the silo but it may result in a waste of the storage capacity of the silo. If the silo is filled rapidly the corn has little time to settle. Slow filling allows the corn to settle as it is stored with the result that more corn can be placed in a given space. To overcome this disadvantage of rapid filling woven wire may be extended above the top of the silo, thus increasing its capacity until it can settle. Patent roofs are made which serve the same purpose. Re-filling in two or three days will accomplish the same end.

Corn cut at the proper stage should require no additional water. When the crop has become too dry, water will add to the keeping qualities and palatability of the silage. Water may be run into the blower or directly into the silo. In the latter case it must be well distributed. Silage made from fodder requires large quantities of water.

More or less silage will decay at the top unless the silo is sealed over or unless feeding is begun soon after filling. To prevent much of this loss, some farmers seal the silo with three or four loads of green corn from which the ears have been removed, some use other sorts of heavy green crops, while still others use saw dust satisfactorily. In every case it is advisable to soak this covering thoroughly with water and to tramp it regularly for several days after it has been placed in the silo.
